WIOA

Reid State Technical College has been awarded a Workforce Innovation and Opportunity ACT (WIOA) grant that will allow youth to obtain education and employability skills. This act will enable youth with difficulties seeking employment to gain on-the-job training opportunities, academic, and occupational skills training. Industry partners include healthcare, manufacturing, distribution, automotive, and information technology options.

The target is youth between the ages of 16-24 who do not have a high school diploma, or GED.

The Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act program is assisting with building the capacity of the public workforce while enhancing the youth's education skills. Through job preparation, students will be able to interact internally and externally with many entities. This will create more job opportunities for citizens within our communities and encourage economic growth and development with RSTC.

It is often very challenging for students to fully commit to their education because of the many barriers that life sometimes presents. In order to help alleviate some of the financial burdens that can arise for students, Reid State will offer incentives that could help motivate them to keep pushing forward. Students that participate regularly by taking advantage of the services being offered thru the grant will be allowed to capitalize on their commitment. Eligible students may receive a gas card once a week or every other week and/or receive child care services at least two days a week. Students will also get the opportunity to further develop their employability skills by participating in paid OJT (on –the-job training) opportunities sponsored by the grant and provided by area businesses and industries. Industry participants include Guyoung, T R Miller Mill Company, and Weyerhaeuser.
